	The Marine Corps demonstrates the feasibility of in-flight refueling of helicopters at the Marine Corps Air Station, Quantico, Virginia. The system uses the same probe-drogue technique developed for in-flight refueling of carrier based jet aircraft. The transfer of fuel in the demonstration was simulated.
	The development of an in-flight refueling system will extend the present operating range over land and sea of Marine Corps helicopters and enable them to carry heavier loads.
	Sequences show the techniques of the operation
	NOTE TO EDITORS: PLEASE CREDIT DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE IN TITLE OR COMMENTARY

INSTRUCTIONS: SEND IN BOTH THE ORIGINAL AND DUPLICATE IN CAN WITH THE NEGATIVE.
