EMPEROR REVIEWS ELABORATE PARADE

A most elaborate military review in celebration of the 2,600th anniversary of the founding of the Japanese empire was held on October 21st at the Yoyogi parade ground in the presence of the emperor.

The soldiers who participated were drawn mainly from garrison in Asaka. The emperor was wearing the uniform of Generalissimo with the grand Gordon of the Chrysanthemum and a number of other decorations. His Majesty passed along the lines of the great array of assembled troops.

Military music announced the beginning of the parade, which was opened by Infantry men passing in front of the throne whereon the Emperor was seated. They were followed by the engineers and then came the mechanized unit, led by a large number of tanks, while airplanes filled the sky above with many formations.

One of the most significant events after the review was a great procession of the mechanized forces through the streets of Tokyo, with object of giving the general public of fuller understanding of the importance of mechanized forces in modern warfare and the high degree of to which they have been developed.
