

MUSICIANS HONOUR SIR HENRY WOOD

It seems impossible that the doyen of English ~~musical~~ music, Sir Henry Wood, is now 75. In his spare time, which heaven knows where he finds, he paints. In his honour At the Royal Academy of Music the Jacques String Orchestra plays ~~things played in his honour Purcell's~~

Turcell's Trumpet Voluntary.

~~Mr. Leonard Boosey, Chairman, Performing Rights Soc. presented Sir Henry with a cheque for 1,000 guineas~~

The Performing Rights Society Chairman, Mr. Leonard Boosey, presented Sir Henry with a cheque for a thousand guineas, first contribution towards a new musical centre for London. Then Lady Wood saw the handsome volume containing tributes from fifteen hundred persons of the music world presented ~~by Dr. Vaughan Williams~~ to her distinguished husband. The name of everybody eminent in music in Britain is in this book. Dr. Vaughan Williams made the presentation. Sir Henry made it clear that he does not in the least contemplate laying down the baton.
