MOUNTEALTEN SAW FOR HIMSELF THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE PLAN WHICH HE AND GENERAL STILWELL WORKED OUT TOGETHER MORE THAN SIX Meadely Two thousand aircraft, including no less than 900 FAST ASI fighters, delivered the second devastating/attack on Berlin. The Flying Fortresses and Liberators took the air from several bomber stations, and when they rendezvoused made up a monster force of one thousand. Allied air fleets have now reached the colossal dimensions predicted two years ago. Target for today was the ball-bearing plant at Erkner, Berlin suburb 16 miles from the city centre. Every mile of the well-plotted route, once over the Channel, the raiders fought their way against Ground minimic crews counted their men in. They noted one Fort with a damaged under-carriage and sent flares up to warn the pilot. He made a wonderful landing on one wheel.

Ambualace and fire-wagons were not wanted.

Next day the Americans hit Berlin again.

Under the relentless, day and night Allied air blows
the German war machine must inevitably collapse.
