NEWSREEL SPEECH BY CHANCELLOR OF THE EXCHEQUER,
SIR JOHN ANDERSON, Tuesday, 25TH APRIL, 1944.

✓ In my Budget of 1944 I have tried not only to give a picture of ~~our~~ present condition, but ^{also} to look ~~a little~~ into the future and to the ~~financial~~ ^{would} conditions which ~~will~~ exist at the end of the war. I have uttered warnings of ^{possible} dangers and difficulties ~~and~~ but I have also ^{expressed,} ~~given an account~~ of the hopes and expectations ^{may} - the confidence ^{feel} ~~in~~ ⁱⁿ the future.

~~It is no part of my duty~~ ^{It is} no part of my duty ~~at this time~~ when the climax of our military effort ^{is} still ^{lies} before us to paint a rosy picture of ~~our~~

But I can fairly say that our financial condition remains sound and healthy. ^{Difficulties still lie ahead -} ^{But if we show the} ~~Given the same~~ readiness to strive and to bear as we have shown ^{in the past} ^{I have no doubt} ~~there can be no doubts~~ ^{as to} ~~of~~ the future.

FCU → [The path will still be hard for a time after the battles are won. But if till now ^{the} our struggle has been for survival itself the further efforts ^{that} we ~~shall~~ have to make will be the more readily undertaken when their ~~direct~~ aim and purpose is seen to be a fuller and better life for all.]
