They lynched the man who was director of prisons in the days of the Gestapo. Donato Carretta was in court as chief witness in the trial of Caruso, since condemned and shot. "There he is," yelled the widows of hostages Carretta handed over to the Gemans. For the time being Caruso was forgotten and the crowd attacked Carretta.

Allied officers were powerless to control the mob.

Eventually Carretta was seized, lynched, thrown in the river Tiber, dragged out and his mangled body hung outside the Falace of Justice. Mammanham A public outraged by Fascist crimes had gone too far. Allied administrators will be on their guard against such things happening again.
