

FRENCH EXECUTE GESTAPO HELPERS

At the Palace of Justice in Paris two French traitors were condemned to death for helping the Germans in a ^{particularly} dastardly manner. Lafon and ^{pictures of} Bony (here ⁱⁿ German uniforms) led a band of civilians in Gestapo pay to demonstrate against British and American prisoners. The ^{German} films were circulated in newsreels during the ^{the} occupation to give the impression that ^{the} French people were hostile to the Allies. So well did those men and women play their part that the ^{the} films carried much conviction. It is unlikely that any who took part in these demonstrations will go unpunished.

(4 out)

(BV Yank in) Only still pictures were allowed in the Palace of Justice when the trial took place of Lafon and Bony. The traitors were sentenced to be shot by a ~~the~~ firing squad of the F.F.I.