LIVE CARGO HITS TOWN: New for the Zoo

Wherever am I? You're in London old chap, part of a deck load of wild animals sent from Kenya to the Zoo.

There's a ton and a half baby elephant, a very fine lion, apparentlymnot in the best of tempers; and strictly on the level a cheetah.

When they arrived at the Zoo, the first consignment of new animals since 1939, there was quite a buzz of conversation. Baby jumbo was already wishing he was back in Africa.

What's all this soing is Las were best x g g on

Jumbo had grown to love his crate on the sea voyage and wouldn't leave it. Nowadays you don't want to give up one hhouse till you're quite sure you've got another.

The young feller's got to learn some manners if he going to stay here. So out jumbo came, after a two-hour struggle, and became one of the family at the London Zoo.

Leo embently rechond the 7 men boy we no 2 learn better manners) he g g 2 stay at the for, be eventually fumbo dick he out - y a z hour struggle-