

WAVELL'S DAUGHTER WEDS

In the carriage used by King George the Fifth at the Delhi Durbar Lord Wavell drove with his daughter, the Honourable Felicity, to the Church of the Redemption, New Delhi, where she was married by the Metropolitan of India. It was a union of two famous families of the fighting services, as the Viceroy's daughter was wed to the son of Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Longmore.

Lances of

Pan Dam
Under the ~~same~~ archway of the Viceroy's bodyguard Captain now serving with the Artillery in Burma, Peter Longmore/led his bride from the church. They went from there to the Viceregal Lodge, where the reception was held in the incomparable Mogul garden. ~~through~~ Though the public was not yet aware of it most of the guests already knew that Lord Wavell was being ^{statesmen} withdrawn from India. Congress ~~members~~ declined invitations to the wedding, though the Princes and Muslim leaders attended. There will be opportunities for few such glittering assemblages in the remaining period of the British Raj. India, which will always affectionately remember ~~Viceroy~~ Viceroy, wished all happiness to his daughter and Captain Longmore.