a show-down at the beginning of the new session. Misuse of the veto by Russia in the Security Council, wearinged has been been by accusing Mr. Vishinsky replied by accusing American Government leaders of pletting war against Russia.

This characteristic reply will not shake the American Secretary of State who said that

- 1. TITLE: UNITED NATIONS FACES GREATEST CHALLENGE!
- 2. Where New York's World's Fair once tried to unite the nations, the fate of the two-year-old U.N. today hangs in explosive tension. Before the world's 1000 top diplomats stands one stark question: shall U.N. survive -- or shall Soviet tactics and Soviet vetoes block the peaceful offorts of all others? Before the crieis meeting, U.S. Secretary Marshall states his nations intentions...
- 13. One American community dramatizes its own backing of the United Nations ideal. The Tarrytowns, where Hendrik Hudson anchored his Half Moon, colobrated United Nations week. Behind the flags and bunting, a whole citizenry studies the meaning of today's global problems. Plain people study their stake in UN, and UN's problem number one...Greece and the Balkans. The problem....to stop guerilla warfare and agression against Greece by Albania, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria. For without peace in Athens, Main Street, Ohio stands still in peril.
- 26. Problem number two -- Palestine. Partion between Arab and Jew, or continuance of Britain's mandate will be the debated questions...but behind the ballots of the diplomats will hang the threat of bullets and blood in the land holy to Moslem and Jew alike.
- 33. Problem number three veto powers; the small nations fighting against the closed corporation of the Big Five -- against Gromyko's dramatic walkout as a symbol of rude autocracy. Problems for diplomats.... problems for humble John Q. Public.

The General Assembly, in its most crucial session, is this world's town meeting. Shall we be one world, in peace, or two hostile hemispheres ——balancing on civilization's brink. Let the world's peoples speak out....This is humanity's time for decision......
