TWIN HELICOPTER FOR U.S. MARINES

Two assault squads of marines - 26 men - can pack into the new Sikorsky transport-helicopter. Twin engines drive the big single rotor. When the men are aboard the power-operated doors tuck them up like a fond mother.

If it tires of marines the big whirlibird can stow a couple of jeeps. The Pratt and Whitney motors, neatly flanking the bulbous fuselage, cruise the helicopter at more than MARKET OF 150-miles-an-hour - high speed for these uncanny aircraft.

The machine packs into a small space, as the rotor blades can fold up. Forward looking aircraft designers believe that a folding helicopter attachment on airliners would raise and land them vertically. Here and now Sikorsky's helicapper that cocks a snook at the law of gravity, produced a to say nothing of retracting its undercarriage.
