MR EDDIE PA WILL BE THERE

WHEN Australia's cricketers arrive in London on April 24, Eddie Paynter will be there to greet them.

Eddie Paynter ... hero of one of the most gallant Test innings ever played by an Englishman against Australia. Eddie Paynter ... who works now, at the age of 54, as a labourer in an Accrington brickyard.

He has been invited by the High Commissioner for Australia to attend the reception which will be given for Ian Johnson's boys at Australia House.

Yesterday, as he hammered nails—left handed—into a box containing a brickwork drill, which was bound for Australia, he said modestly:

"This is a very very pleasant surprise. It's a great honour."

Eddie Paynter was always modest even in the great days of the 1930's when his left-handed batsmanship won him a place in 20 Tests and gave him a Test average of 59.28.

Bodyline tour

But the one Test for which little Eddie Paynter, of Lancashire, will ever be remembered was played in Australia, on the famous Jardine "bodyline" tour of 1932-33.

England, 2—1 up in the series, were struggling for first-innings runs in the fourth Test at Bris-

R. E. S. Wyatt, Maurice Leyland, Lestie Ames, "Gubby" Allen had all gone for low scores.

Paynter got up out of a hospital bed, where he lay stricken with tonsilitis, to go in at No. 8 and save England with a grimly gathered 83, acquired in just over four hours.

In the second innings, when England needed only three runs to clinch the match and regain the Ashes, McCabe sent down a full toss for gallant Paynter to smack for six—and a sixwicket win.

of Paynter's first-innings 83. Wisden, the bible of cricket, afterwards commented: "It was one of the finest examples of pluck and fortitude in the history of Test cricket."

up to last season, although he retired from big cricket in 1939. is father, anyway, never did "'old with this fancy Test stuff."

In 1938, when Paynter was setting up a record fourth-wicket stand of 222 with Wally Hammond at Lord's against the Aussies, old man Paynter refused point-blank to listen to the radio commentary.

He said he was going off down the road to watch a Lancashire League match, which was "real cricket."

The war washed out Paynter's benefit match with Lancashire. Two attempts at running a pub proved unsuccessful. So he is back where he started—in a brickyard overlooking the Accrington cricket ground.

And there, yesterday, the man Australia has not forgotten put the stuation in perspective when he said:

said:

The man I'm looking forward to meeting most is Ray Lindwall. D'you know, when I last saw him. he was just learning to boul."
