DUKE VISITS ESSEX AND SUFFOLK

Disembarking from Hands. Ledsham, an inshore minesweeper, the Duke of Edinburgh was received by Lord Stradbroke, Lord Lieutenant of Suffolk, and Captain le Fanu, who is H.M.S. Ganges. That's the name of the naval training establishment at Shotley; where youngsters are initiated into the ways of the navy. The Duke told the boys that bey would handle speece and cadgets und reamt needs.

toremostic cheerful, well dispiplined men. He watched howe euchof who'd only 16 hours earlier wrestling with their unfform. It was a very successful visit.

topmost boy 150-feet from the ground.

Next day the Duke went to Lowestoft, the second largest herring port in Britain. He found the fishing industry busy and thriving.

His Royal Highness cast off the stern rope of the trawler Boston Herald, starting her maiden voyage. Aborad Sir Iancelot he saw the workings of this food research vessel. belonging to the Ministey of Agriculture and Fisheries. 20 trawlers have been ordered by Russia. The Duke inspected one of them. She's a fine ship named -Mo faterleer, but of course you can read for yourself...X Even the Duke has seldom crowded so much into two days.

11

4 cm

30

30