The Chief Commander of the O.T.A.N., General Gruenther, had come to Bonn to bid farewell. First he rendered a visit to Federal President Heuss, then he met Federal Chancellor Adenauer.

On the occasion of a conference with the Federal Defence Minister, Mr. Blank, General Gruenther declared his opinion, that the universal compulsory military service would adapt to Western Germany. This was his point of view in a question which is sincerely discussed during the last weeks in Germany, namely the question "Professional Army" or "Universal Military Service" ?
