

What excitement at London Airport. Marilyn Monroe was flying in, with her new husband of two weeks, Arthur Miller, the dramatist. Marilyn's come to England to make a film and all the cameramen and reporters in London were there to meet her. It looked as if the famous press-jams of New York arrivals would have nothing on this one. ~~Shumshumshumshum~~ Sir Laurence Olivier ~~Shumshumshumshum~~ and Vivienne Leigh steered the rather bewildered Mr. Miller and Marilyn into the restaurant to sample the English quiet week-end.
