

QUEEN SEES TENTH EDINBURGH FESTIVAL

25
The Lords Provost of Edinburgh and Glasgow headed the procession of dignitaries into St. Giles Cathedral, to attend the inaugural service of the Edinburgh Festival. H.M., the Duke and Princess Margaret graced the occasion, most fittingly, for this is the tenth Festival, attracting the foremost practitioners in the arts to the historic capital of Scotland. The Usher Hall

40
~~Harmonies~~ Resound ^{in} with the music of the finest orchestras B
Opera, performed by eminent companies. Here in dress rehearsal is the Magic Flute. Meanwhile elsewhere, in rehearsal for the Sadlers Wells Ballet and discussing choreography, were David Blair and Svetlana Beriozova.

60
To the Scottish National Gallery, the President, Lord Crawford, escorted the Queen to the Bi-centenary ~~celebration~~ ^{exhibition} of Sir Henry Raeburn, the famous Scottish portrait painter.

20
From the steps of the Scottish Royal Academy the Queen reviewed the march past of 150 pipers. The capital of Scotland is just now at home to the world.