

13 That explosion was 6,000 feet up in the French Alps.
 where geophysical scientists were trying to gauge the thickness of the earth's crust by ~~measuring~~ measuring 20 sound waves ~~measured~~ recorded by intricate apparatus ~~laboriously~~ ~~measured~~ brought up the mountain. Bombs provided by the army 30 were taken out into the lake to be detonated 22 feet under the surface of ~~the mountain~~. There were separate explosions of two, three, five and ten tons.

Now for the grand-daddy of them all, the ten-tonner.... <sup>(82)</sup> The men of science being satisfied the mountains regained their tranquillity.
