

ANN HARDING.

The liner Duchess of Atholl brought into Liverpool a famous film star ----- Ann Harding. Even more than usual interest was aroused by Ann's visit to Britain, because her recently - divorced husband had obtained in Quebec a warrant for the star's arrest on a charge of abducting their daughter Jane. Be that as it may, the other passengers were determined that our cameraman shouldn't abduct her, and smuggled the little girl into the customs shed.

And now the latest news from Hollywood --- James Gleason had a birthday party and Pat O'Brien was among those present, but Jimmy's getting thin on the top so he didn't have any candles ~~to say they know him when.~~ Meanwhile Toby Wing and Tom Brown got on with the serious business of cutting the cake ~~xxx~~ ^{with} ~~while~~ May Robson and Frank McHugh ~~looked on to see they didn't cheat.~~ By the way, Victor MacLaglen has an Army of his own --- the Light Horse Brigade. Very smart, they are too, but as you might expect from a Hollywood Regiment they had to have a love interest so they enrolled a few blondes. If America ever starts a war, everybody'll want to join in. / Sydney, Australia --- land of surf riders and beach life guards, found Charles Farrell soaking up the sunshine between pictures. Now come to China, where you'll find Warner Oland mixing with the crowd --- eminent detective Charlie Chan seek clue --- find chop suey perhaps. / Now back to Hollywood --- it had to be for a story like this. Evelyn Venables goes riding on a forest-bred lion scheduled to fight a couple of ~~xxxxxxx~~ elephants in its next picture. / Hasn't the lion got nice eyes? -
