

SIENA HORSE RACE.

264

The oldest horse race in the world is also the most dangerous--- and one of the jockeys falls off at the start to save time. 70,000 people watch the race round the Piazza

ROOSEVELT.

It's raining in Franklin Field, but the sunshine of the President's smile means that he's optimistic of his chances for being re-elected. After the speech came thunders of applause.

OXFORD v. CAMBRIDGE CRICKET.

At Lord's the annual cricket match between Oxford and Cambridge. ~~Cambridge finished with the first innings~~ On the first innings the Light Blues finished over two hundred runs to the good and after that the interest in the cricket seemed to dwindle. But it's ~~really~~ very doubtful how many people go to Lord's to watch the match on these occasions. As long as you get a certain amount of sunshine and the opportunity to criticise your friends' clothes that's really all that matters --- provided, of course, there's enough to eat.

BOULDER DAM.

Boulder Dam was built to ensure that neighbouring states got enough had an adequate supply of water, but in the meantime it's a new American beauty spot. Passenger liners fly on a regular service above the man-made Colossus --- the eighth wonder that America has given the world.
