

FRENCH PURSUIT PLANE.

From a model the French air Force has evolved a new pursuit plane --- armed with two big guns and capable of 330 miles an hour. At that speed if the pilot isn't careful when he fires the gun he'll get one of his own shells in the back of the neck.

WELSH EISTEDDFOD.

Mr Lloyd George --- looking as young and cheerful as ever --- attended the Welsh Bardic Festival, the Eisteddfod. This ancient ceremony retains all its picturesque tradition in the procession of Bards through the town.

QUEEN WOLHELMINA.

The Queen of Holland spends a democratic holiday in the Alsatian village of Hohwald --- and even a royal artist is not immune from the curiosity of children. With her is Princess Juliana --- reading the paper to find out if she's engaged to be married.

SPANISH CIVIL WAR (FIFTH EDITION.) Back by plane

Our cameramen ~~in Spain~~ have sent these latest despatches from the seat of the Civil War --- first from the Government troops under General de Llano in Seville. Between bombardments, comparative peace reigns, but as we drive through the streets in the military transport trucks we sense the tension in the air. North of Madrid are more Government troops --- men ^{and} women --- boys and girls --- going into action in the battle of Somosierra --- the battle for the key to Madrid.
