

JEWISH EX-SERVICEMEN'S PARADE.

The Horse Guards' Parade saw the Assembly of four battalions of Jewish ex-Servicemen, gathered to take part in a service of National Remembrance for thousands of their comrades who laid down their lives for Britain during the Great War. The Inspection was by Field Marshal Lord Milne ^{afterwards} after which the Battalion moved off for the march down Whitehall. A wreath was laid at the Cenotaph as the Battalions marched by --- a tribute to their comrades who march no more.
