

SWIMMING AND DIVING IN AUSTRALIA.

The opening of the new Granville Baths in New South Wales was celebrated by a visit from some of the world's Olympic stars, and the baths were built according to Olympic standards so they felt quite at home. Here's how the champions show their form.

Our slow motion camera gives you a one and a half somersault full screw. One and a half straight somersault is considered good going, but here's a two and a half.

In Palm Springs California they had a water rodeo. Much better than the ordinary western kind, because you get wet but you don't get hurt.

CYCLING ENDURANCE.

The world's long distance cycling record used to be held by Archie Nicholson of Australia with 43,996 miles, but here's Walter Greaves breaking that record in London. With an escort of scores of enthusiastic fellow-riders he completed his last mile in Hyde Park. He is a ~~brave~~ man and he seems to be ~~quite cheerful in spite of having just ~~covered~~ covered 43,996~~

~~miles.~~ The Cup which he so richly deserved was presented by the Western Brothers.
