

CYCLE TRAINING.

Paris --- Cycling is so popular in France that they are hard put to it to think of new kinds of races. Now the home trainer is made into a home racer. By this means the most famous pedal-pushers in France can ride hundreds of miles ~~without~~ and ~~still~~ remain ^{All day} in ~~the~~ same place. In England we have a lot of people who go for a bicycle ride on Sunday ~~and~~ ^{but they get thirsty and} remain all day ~~at the Blue Bear.~~ ^{in the same place.}

CAR-PLANE.

The latest addition to the ranks of aeroplane cars seems ideal for the owner-pilot. Keeping the car in a garage at home he motors to the airport where his wings are fitted. He is also given a harp. It is a six-cylinder engine, and the same steering wheel is used in the air or on land. Cruising speed 105 miles an hour -- 16 miles to the gallon. Aeroplane story from Egypt --- visiting the tomb of Tutankmen gives way to an international air meeting. Eleven nations took part and we include a picture of the Pyramids because no picture of Cairo would be complete without it. Aeroplane story from France --- a stunt flyer gave a demonstration of parachuting at Villacoublay. Jumping from a height of 25,000 feet he used up six parachutes before reaching the ground. What it was all in aid of I don't know, but that's what he did. The big aeroplane story of the batch is the flight of Signor Mussolini to Lybia to review the Italian Fleet. Il Duce acted as his own pilot, so he didn't need six parachutes.
