The Mother of Parliaments is going to play ^{Mrs} Santa Claus, and we have asked Sir Kingsley Wood to tell you how.

TROTGING AND JUMPING.

Lyndonville, Vermont is crazy over horses, and any excuse for a race is considered better than none. By way of a change they had the trotters out on a snow-clad Main Street --- and if that isn't a good excuse they just race anyway.

Mexico City had the cavalry out too --- not for racing but for training. They say that cavalry is out of date --- but the cavalry won't admit it.

EDEN AND BRITISH PRISONERS IN SPAIN.

Mr Anthony Eden the Foreign Secretary is again discussing the question of non-intervention in Spain, and our news pictures this week from the land of civil war include these of British prisoners. Some of the army of unemployed enrolled for road-making under the Spanish Government, but they were captured by the insurgents. Here they are in detention ~~XXXX~~ camp, being served out with food, of which there is no scarcity. In the fighting line our cameraman is on the spot, securing the first sound-film ~~XXXXXX~~ interview in the trenches. And then --- the deluge ----- Taking some of his pictures from a ruined building and some from an armoured car, our cameraman secured this grim record of an attack on the village.
