

SIENA HOSE RACE.

368

Siena, Italy has the oldest horse race in the world --- the traditional scupper round the market square. It has been flourishing for the past six centuries and the sharp turns make it very dangerous, so the corners are padded with mattresses and newsreel cameraman. Lucerne has a horse show --- riders of all nations took part in a competition over a difficult course of assorted jumps. The horse is the friend of man but fond of a practical joke. One took all the jumps so nicely the rider thought he was winning, ~~until~~ -----

At Colorado the cowboys and girls left the plains and tried jumping on the water. It's the latest form of aquaplaning, but the wheel of the wagon was broken. The cry is "Ride 'em cowboy, but they didn't hear the cry.

fish swam!*
