THEIR MAJESTIES AT GLASGOW.

After Edinburgh, their Majesties went on to Glasgow, arriving at Central Station. Among those waiting to receive them were Mr Walter Elliot, Secretary of State for Scotland, and the Earl of Eldon, with Equerries and Ladies in Waiting. On leaving the station, their Majesties drove to Bellahouston Park, where they were received by the Earl of Elgin and Kincardine, President of the Scottish Exhibition. The King and Queen were shown the site for the Exhibition and a model of the completed work. King George then inspected a guard of Honour formed by the Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve. ~~After representing~~ ~~to their Majesties~~ The Earl of Elgin then invited His Majesty to unveil the stone. Then Lord Provost of Glasgow then spoke. In the afternoon their Majesties drove to Dumbarton Castle, where they received the keys in accordance with ancient tradition.

OPEN GOLF?

After Britain's defeat in the Ryder Cup, it is pleasant to record the smashing success of British golfers in the Open Championship. Cotton is the ~~new~~ new champion, with a fine aggregate of 290 --- leading Reg Whitcombe by two strokes. The leading American was third --- so here's a special cheer for Cotton for keeping the Cup at home.

KING IN SCOTLAND.

Eight thousand guests attended the Royal Garden Party in the grounds of Holyrood House, and the King and Queen moved among them chatting and smiling. But the function was ruined by a thunderstorm.

The following day King George held a levee at the Palace, over 700 men from all parts of Scotland attending, in uniforms of colourful variety. Later in the day, on the Rugby Football ground at Murrayfield, the King and Queen attended a rally of 23,000 young Scots. Boys Brigades, Girl Guides and Boy Scouts --- all were represented, and hear them cheer!

After Edinburgh, Their Majesties went on to Glasgow where, at the site of the Scottish Exhibition, King George unveiled the stone.

And at Dumbarton Castle there was the ceremony of handing over the keys --- in accordance with ancient tradition.

MUSSELBURGH.

King George and Queen Elizabeth completed a busy week in Scotlan with a visit to the races,, where again the weather was none of the best. The King's horse Felstone was favourite in the third race --- the Edinburgh summer handicap --- but Gentle Lily won. In the Glenfuir Plate --- the fourth race --- His Majesty's Sanctorgum ran second to B.C.S.
