

WOMEN JOCKEYS.

It's ladies' day at Seattle, Washington --- but they stick to the rules and weigh the jockeys in public nevertheless. Always looking their best even on a horse, these racing Dianas showed that when it comes to speed they can hold their own with any Richards or Donoghue. If they had more of this in the British Isles there'd be more people following jockeys than horses. Our American correspondent forgot to tell us who was the winner, but that was probably because she wasn't his type. And here you see how girls train to-day for all those manly games they go in for. They say it is necessary to suffer in order to be beautiful --- and the ordinary massage is no longer consider enough. The modern girl has to be slapped and rolled for hours on end --- and it's a toss up whether she turns into a beauty or a string of sausages.

386