

ODEON.

How many and how rich are the memories that cling to the old Alhambra of Leicester Square. Entertainment there was always of the best --- and this year the builders have been hard at work rebuilding for a new theatre, where the standard is likely to be no less high. Odeons all over the country are synonymous with first class entertainment, and from the ashes of that old building has arisen the greatest Odeon of them all. ~~The Odeon Leicester Square~~ honoured on its opening night by the presence of the ~~Duke and Duchess of Gloucester.~~

DUKE PRESENTS COLOURS.

~~Before presenting colours to the 1st and 2nd Battalions, His Royal Highness addressed them.~~

~~The Duke then handed over the colours.~~ Owing to the appalling weather conditions the ceremony took place in the picture gallery of St James's Palace, not in the garden as was intended. But after the presentation, His Royal Highness inspected the Battalions in the open and took the salute at the march past.

HRH. H. R. G. presented new Colours

to the R.I. Infantry

to the 1st & 2nd Battalions of the R.I. Infantry.

On the 11th April 1914