

HONGKONG.

424

As the Japanese invasion of China creeps towards the south, Britain looks over her defences in the Colony of Hongkong. Vice-Admiral Crabbe reviews the parade of bluejackets. War clouds thicken around this all-important naval base --- but the China squadron is on guard.

Meanwhile, into the Chinese Capital of Nanking the Japanese have made their formal entry ----- General Matsui, commander-in-chief rode triumphantly at their head.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT.

President Roosevelt and Vice President Garner were together at this Washington dinner in celebration of Jackson Day. Like Christmas, it only happens once a year --- and also like Christmas it is very informal.
