DEGREE FOR MR EDEN.

This year part of the celebrations of May Week at Cambridge saw Earl Baldwin, as Chancellor of the University, conferring honorary degrees. Among those <sup>who</sup> received them was the ex-Foreign Secretary, Mr Anthony Eden. For this picturesque news item the University of Cambridge supplies an explanatory brochure in Latin. Perhaps they could also tell us in Latin, why May Week is really a fortnight in June.

GLOUCESTER.

Decorations were in order also at Gloucester, but these were the rosettes and favours of the Agricultural Gala. The Duke and Duchess of Gloucester attended the Three Counties Show, where Her Royal Highness presented awards for flowers and vegetables and cattle. These county shows are always interesting --- even to a city-dweller, a prize-winning bull looks magnificent. Think what he must look like to a cow.
