

HOT WEATHER.

483

Famous Coney Island is packed as America sizzles in one of her record heat waves. New Yorkers have come out here in search of Fresh air. But the kids at home on the sidewalk probably have the best of it --- even if they can't bathe like society's top dogs. The slogan is keep cool --- and they mean to do it even if it means washing. America's social registerites on their swanky roof-gardens have cool drinks brought to them by their man, but after all so does a horse. Mother keeps the children's heads cool for them, --- father has to keep his own head cool. There's nothing like a sunshine roof --- even in a heat wave you can cool a fevered brow. ~~We've~~ We've had a heat wave in Britain --- but look what happened

~~to the dumb things!~~

to it!
