

GLASS TOP PLANE. Etc.

492

AMERICAN AIRCRAFT CORPORATION BOSTON THOMAS

The latest thing in streamlined sky-scouts... an observation plane covered with bulletproof glass. It's a flying showcase, designed for reconnaissance behind the enemy lines. That means that it has to be speedy --- and retractable wheels ensure the maximum m.p.h. It's Uncle Sam's latest eagle --- with an eagle eye. And here's another novelty --- a seaplane built to land on water but it lands equally well on land. It sounds like the blind horse that sees equally well both ends. It's as truly amphibian as a sea-lion, ^{but neither are requested} ~~but the pilot gets~~
 ~~not to give the pilot pieces of fish.~~
 ~~annoyed if you offer him pieces of fish.~~

Now cast your memory back to the pilots of yesteryear. Twenty-one years ago Captain Georges Guynemer disappeared during an aerial battle of the world war. Now, at Malo les Bains, France has dedicated a bronze monument to the memory of her greatest ace. Captain Guynemer takes his place in the Temple of Fame --- when killing was his job he shot down 53 enemy planes.
