

WINDSOR CASTLE WEDDING. 53/

In the magnificent Waterloo Chamber at Windsor our cameras gazed upon the array of presents before the wedding of Mr J.L. Harvey and Miss Anne Wigram. ^{They} included gifts from their Majesties ^{the King & Queen} and Queen Mary.

The wedding took place at St George's Chapel, Windsor --- the first there for many years, and the weather decided to mark the occasion in a most elaborate manner. Workmen were kept busy sweeping the snow away, but the fall was so heavy the steps were soon covered again. The cars began to arrive with the guests --- and even for the arrival of the bride herself ~~with a large party~~ --- ~~and the King's Private Secretary~~ the snow couldn't give way to sunshine. But the crowds were not dismayed --- they had come to see the wedding of Lord Wigram's daughter -- he is the King's Private Secretary --- and they were not to be put off. ^{And} Windsor Castle ^{looked more than ever} itself usually so grim a piece of architecture ~~--- looked almost like a wedding~~ ^{with bells to ring}

So it was a wedding in the snow --- and the ushers were kept busy with large umbrellas walking down the steps with bridesmaids and running up again with agility.
