HUNT WEDDING IN COUNTY TYRONE.

In a wintry setting of falling snow, a brilliant hunt wedding took place in the heart of County Tyrone. The bride was Miss Florence Agnes Taylor, and the groom Mr Alec Wier McKinlay, and they passed triumphantly through an archway of hunting crops. The bride and bridegroom were soon up in the saddle, and our cameraman couldn't miss an occasion like this to secure a picture of them on either side of the master. The happy pair received the good wishes of the passers by as they returned from the Church through the snowy countryside to celebrate the festive occasion. A lovely three tier cake made one's mouth water, and there ~~was~~ was evidently plenty of rare vintage to wash it down. So here's health and happiness to this charming lady ~~and her gallant swain~~ and her gallant swain, who became man and wife in the midst of the hunt they loved.
