HYDE PARKS A.R.P. ETC.

London's Hyde Park occasionally turns a cold shoulder upon orators and nursemaids and gives its green spaciousoness to a serious parade. This time it is a combined civil and military Defence Parade --- and there were Cabinet Ministers present to watch exercises by Anti-Aircraft Divisions, Balloons and A.R.P.workers. A great crowd gathbred to watch --- and the greater the crowd there is to watch and work the more it becomes obvious to the world at large that Britain is at last awake.

Out in the country too Britain's volunteer peace army is busy. At Chobham Ridges men and women territorials were at work. In a mechanized army you have to be prepared for a accidents. So part of the training includes instruction on how to get a lobby the right way up

"hilst we are busy with our preparations for discouraging aggressors we receive a visitor in the person of Colonel Beak, the Polish Foreign "inister. Poland may well have proved to be the turning point of Britain's foreign policy. For with the Government pledges came the first steps of malliance of peace. The French Air Minister has also visited London --- M. la Chambre --- for important discussions with the Fritish fir Minister, Sir Angeley Wood. The closest possible contact is being maintained between the Air Services of the two countries
