

FRENCH GRAND PRIX.

578

Fifteen cars started in the Rhâims Grand Prix, but only fourteen completed the course in conditions that slowed down times considerably. But even so the four hundred kilometres were covered in 2 hours 21 minutes . And that's pretty good going, especially if you happen to know what a kilometre is.

All the excitement is not on the track..... there's a thrill in the pits when petrol catches fire.

~~..... and Muller was the winner~~
