

- cut off the end ✓ 602
MUNITIONS, TANKS AND GUNFIRE.

Britain is not repeating the mistake of the last war --- shortage of shells. All over the country factories are busy turning out ammunition to serve the guns --- there will be no lack of material to keep the war going until final victory is achieved. And the quality too, is second-to-none. British materials and British workmanship have a world reputation to uphold --- this reputation will be more than maintained when the artillery from British ~~guns~~ batteries begins to roar. Shells for attack --- shells for defence. Anti-aircraft guns have reached a pitch of perfection undreamed of a few years ago. This is the ammunition that will wreak destruction in the air if the bombers should come over. Factories working at full pressure --- no reserve is too great --- no output too high to help us in this fight for freedom. Taxes have already reached a fantastic figure but the money is being spent on the safety of the Empire and the security of our homes --- no price is too high for that.

Now, Somewhere in England, watch the ammunition in action. For not only are shells and bullets needed for the front line --- practise at home is invaluable. ~~First --- light tanks with machine-guns mounted~~

~~Light tanks with machine-guns~~
Six-inch guns --- quick in action --- deadly in effect.

Finally the howitzer ----- with huge shells half the size of a man. Queen of the Battle --- formidable and devastating.