

AUSTRALIAN NAVY.

The Empire is justly proud of its great family. Dominion pilots in the Air Force and Dominion ships and men in the Navies, have already earned themselves many laurels. Here is part of the Australian Navy at work --- with a very useful anti-aircraft gun firing shells like bullets

And four machine guns firing in unison

That's a chorus for Australia to sing to the Nazi Air Force. and now the big sound

There's always a job for the Navy. Here's a Swedish merchantman that was struck and damaged by a mine. But she remained afloat --- and a danger to shipping. So a British destroyer was ordered to sink her. First --- a depth charge was placed on board

Date

Then the job of sinking was finished off with target practice

By

It's all in the day's work. But it shows once again that the Navy is doing a million jobs --- even a lot of little ones that we don't often hear about.

Steel Factory.

Commentary missing