

677
ANZACS.

London says --- Hullo, Australia! More overseas visitors ~~sailors~~ in London --- ~~from~~ New Zealand. sailors, inspected by the High Commissioner

And the Queen visited ~~at~~'s the Victoria League Club where four hundred men of the forces from the Empire stay while in the British capital.

Representatives of nearly every branch of the services from the Dominions and Colonies were here to meet Her Majesty

Now let's have a look at the Anzacs abroad. In the middle east they're hardening up for the big clash that must come sooner or later. While they're waiting for real action, they put into ~~the~~ their training ~~every thing~~ they've got. When the big day comes, the Dominions will be there. And troops from the Mother Country are with them --- a pretty tough proposition

Fighting alongside British and Anzacs, Indian troops await a meeting with the enemy --- they'll be very pleased to see him.
The decks are cleared for action. And it looks as though when the action starts, Britain is going to be well represented.
