KING CAROL.

King Carol has abdicated, following the internal excitement caused in Rumania by the loss of parts of Transylvania. Even for the Balkans, Carol's career has been what you might call colourful. This is the second time he has abdicated in favour of his son Prince Michael --- Never a dull moment.

MINERS' HOME GUARD.

They're talking about invasion again; so here is one small example of how the whole of Britain will become a hornet's nest if Hitler should decide to visit us. Miners in the Welsh collieries are as ready for danger above the surface as they are below it; their section of the Home Guard is ready for action.

KING AT M.O.I.

The King and Queen paid a visit of inspection to the Ministry of Information and made a tour of the Building with Mr Duff Cooper. I wonder if they showed their Majesties the room where they break the hearts of newsreel commentators.

TORPEDOED CHILDREN.

Children who were torpedoed while crossing to Canada have arrived safely in London. And they all seem to be quite well thank you after their adventure. That was the biggest adventure in three hundred young lives --- ~~but not all the children~~; and so to bed.
