

LINK TRAINER.

Every day we read of the magnificent achievements of the Royal Air Force. Every day we learn again how the superiority of the men of the R.A.F. has proved itself gloriously in battle against the Luftwaffe. One of the reasons for that superiority is to be found in the thorough training that each man receives --- and this is one of the ~~main~~ stages of the early ~~training~~ work --- the Link Trainer. It reproduces on the ground the pilot's job in the air.

It's the groundwork that counts in the long run; and it's the combination of high courage, technical knowledge and perfect skill that has made the name of the Royal Air Force ring through the world. The youngest service is in line with the high traditions of the oldest.....R.A.F. crews are second to none.