COCKERS.

2
Don't they look lovely? Well, they are lovely. They're prize cocker spaniels at one of the foremost breeding kennels in Britain. Mr and Mrs McKenzie, the owners, have won prizes for the past 18 years, and have exported these charming creatures to all parts of the world. One of them has to his credit over 600 first prizes, ~~and~~ and has 37 times been awarded champion of all breeds--- He is now reserve champion in Ireland. Cockers, of course, are noted for their marvellous noses when out with the guns.

WILD DUCK.

By the million the ducks and geese take off--- At the Wild Fowl Sanctuary in California-- this is only the vanguard.

Flying over water-- reflected in the water. They ~~are~~ rest here on their annual migration. But stop'. you haven't seen ducks and geese yet. They're the main stream taking off.

If you don't believe it-- count them. A whirring of wings millions of wings extending to the far horizon. ✓
