FOOTBALL AND HILL CLIMB.

Quite a good sized crowd turned up for the League Cup-- one of the matches to decide who goes into the semi-final.

Arsenal were playing Spurs at White Hart Lane-- Arsenal are the team in white shorts. The dice were loaded against the visitors- they had to play Hapgood in goal owing to the absence of Marks and in the second half their ten-men team became nine when Male was injured. But the play was fast and vigorous.

The crowd was a record for the season- over 25,000.

The result was a one-all draw, and Arsenal went into the semi-final on aggregate. Here's the Arsenal goal.

Now for a breath-taker-- the old crocks hill-climb at San Antonio, in Texas. The cars entered in this race prove that a war can do everything a horse can do except eat sugar.

A test like this may look a bit of a waste of time because most of the roads are better than this. But at least it gives you practice in what to do when the driver in front of you, suddenly discovers he's passed his turning.
