

MR CHURCHILL REASSURED AND REFRESHED.

The Prime Minister in his recent speech told us that he had just been to some of our great cities to find out about the uneasiness that was said to exist ~~over the war situation.~~

This film shows you why he was reassured and refreshed: <sup>about</sup> ~~it~~ that problem. ~~also illustrates at least one of his potent paragraphs~~

The Premier paused for a moment to sign the town's visitors book amid the wreckage of bombs; but for the rest he scarcely ~~passed~~ <sup>stopped</sup> in his journey through cheering men and women. It's another way of saying "Are we downhearted? No" and at least one lady replies with deeds not words

It's good to see everyone so cheerful; for thus lies the way of victory: thus and in the factories turning out armaments of which this is the latest sample. It's the worlds champion gun - so big and so important that it has a special name - His Majesty's Gun Boche Buster

Mr Churchill in his speech also laid stress on the importance of the Battle of the Atlantic. In the defense of Britain and in the keeping open of our lifeline of supply with America is the way to our victory. Mr Churchill said that we are taking all possible measures to meet the deadly attack in the Atlantic. The Battle of the Atlantic holds first place, in the thoughts of those upon whom rests the responsibility for procuring the victory. And the Premier paid a well-deserved tribute to the Navy and the Air Force and to the Merchant Navy whose great task it is to win this decisive battle

Hitler has loosed the whole weight of his U-Boat force against our lifeline in the Atlantic - but the Navy is taking its toll. These are the latest prisoners: but there are many, many more who are out of the fight - though not by capture
