Gaumont British Cameras have been busy filming events on the Home Front.

Mr. Fraser, Prime Minister of New Zealand, spent a full day inspecting various armed units in the Southern counties and on the South East Coast.

STRIKING

The party watched a ~~striking~~ demonstration of tanks and guns in action --- including the latest anti-tank devices.

After this parade, Mr. Fraser had an informal chat with several of the pilots at a neighbouring aerodrome, including Canadian, Czech and American Airmen --- all linked up together in their common determination to overthrow Hitler.

THE

~~and~~ Free French in London remembered the Anniversary of the capture of the Bastille on July 14th, 1789.

Detachments of the Free French Army Navy and Air Force paraded in Whitehall. Admiral Muselier, representing General de Gaulle, laid his wreath at the foot of the Cenotaph.

V-shaped OFFERING

Later a ~~tribute~~ (the significant V of victory) appeared on the Foch Memorial in Grosvenor Gardens.

Meanwhile, a great parade of Czech airmen somewhere in Britain)--- The occasion was the first anniversary of the formation of Czechoslovakia's fighter squadron in this Country.

Over and over again in this war, the Air Force of our gallant ally has proved its worth in helping to bring down from the sky the ~~pestilential~~ plague of Nazi locusts. As soon as the call comes, they're on the alert ready to go up at a moment's notice.

At the end of a job well done, it's surely pleasant to be greeted by such a pal as this. And as a final ~~tribute~~ to this cosmopolitan panorama, we present pictures of an informal afternoon party given by the King and Queen at Buckingham Palace to the heads of Allied States established in Britain. Among the distinguished guests were Queen Marie of Yugoslavia, the Queen of the Netherlands, Mme. Benes, Mme. Raczkiéwicz, the young King of Yugoslavia, King Haakon of Norway, ~~XX~~ M. Raczkiéwicz, the Polish President, and Dr. Benes of Czechoslovakia.

NEW ZEALAND PREMIER.

What happier promise of victory-to-come¹ than the welcome of our King and Queen[~] to these brave men and women, burdened with responsibilities,[~] yet with spirits unbroken[~] and heads held high? /
