COAST WATCHERS IN LIBYA.

In Libya there's an Observer Corps --- a very important sideline for the Army of the Nile. Both during the offensives and during the periods of lull a constant watch must be kept on sea and sky. Bren guns at frequent intervals are the foretaste of the reception a raider is likely to get: and day and night those eyes are looking for trouble; to save our desert armies from attack by surprise.

KING AND QUEEN.

The King and Queen have been making another extensive inspection tour of a naval command in the South. The Navy, Marines and Wrens were all present and also units from ~~the~~ <sup>the countries</sup> training with the Royal Navy. ~~American Naval officers were also among those on board.~~ Finally, on board a submarine, their Majesties chatted with crews who have been honoured for outstanding gallantry in their hazardous work.
