

LUXURY HOME FOR STRAY CATS.

837 ①

A group of stray Liverpool cats have an income of £500 a year to provide them with luxury flatlets.

For don't forget, cats are a National institution, without them there would very soon be a plague of rats and mice. The amount of food which they eat is far outweighed by the food they save. Each cat receives expert medical attention, bandages always being handy, in case of a scrap.

Each flat is a large wire cage carpeted with linoleum, while the furniture is composed of a cushioned basket, feeding trough, ash pan and scratch pole.

After the evening chat, in the common room, he climbs the stairs for a little exercise.

Yes, it's a real cat's paradise, but when they ~~are~~ ^{set} all together, nobody has a shred of reputation left.

It's a home from home, filled with a happy family-- and if it's cold, why, there's a fire already laid.
