

DEFENCE OF THE CARIBBEAN.

S.45. P.M. Hoff. 870
4/5/12

Interceptor Command of the Caribbean Air Force --- co-operating with the American Navy in the defence of the Panama Canal Zone. From their camouflaged dispersal points, these United States fighters take off daily to patrol the isthmus cross roads of the Western Hemisphere --- the link of the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans

Also on guard --- the Patrol Torpedo Boat Squadrons of the Caribbean Fleet; their crews are tough and hard-bitten --- the ships they ride are tough and streamlined: it was in one of these that MacArthur left Bataan to take Command in Australia.

And another Panama Defence story showing how infinite is the <sup>variety</sup> of the people who hate the Nazis. It's an American Signal Corps: Good soldiers and fine workers, they can keep going in terrific heat and across impossible country.
Ninety per cent are from the big cities of the United States.

A modern army needs to bring a high efficiency into the wildest country - + communications ~~can~~ can shell
the difference between defeat
+ victory.
