

THE PHANTOM SHIP.

Quite a new idea in the shipping line --- a model of a radio-controlled cargo ship.

This ninety-foot wonder - with a temporary deckhouse, is made entirely of concrete; and is almost flush with the water.

The inventors claim that a fleet of ten 2000-ton craft could be ~~conveyed~~^{shepherded} by one ~~mother~~^{mother} ship, controlling them all by radio. Certainly a novelty to come across anything like this along the broad highway of the ocean.

COUNTING JAPANESE MONEY.

In all 96,800 Japanese Yen which once belonged to the land of the Rising Sun. Now it belongs to Uncle Sam's Marines, who captured it in the Solomons activities.

What the Marines are going to do with it is nobody's business, -- but that's one of the things you don't have to tell the Marines.
