POLITICAL PRISONERS FREE IN AFRICA.

A happy and refreshing scene from Algiers --- the return to freedom of men who had been kept in concentration camps by the policy of North Africa's former Vichy masters--- the policy that might be described as Hun and water. These men, greeted by a British officer, came from such places as Vienna, Berlin, Paris and Pilsen; they have been released since the Allied occupation. They will join Britain's Pioneer Corps to work for the armies of the United Nations under British officers: there must be many thousands in Europe equally willing to work and fight against Hitler. The thing is to find them.

And now the fighting front: some of the great artillery barrage put over by the First Army on the Tunis <sup>sector.</sup> front.

Further south, in the Central sector, Field Marshal Lord Gort from Malta paid a visit to the American commander in the field --- General Patton. ~~Malta has played a gallant, unforgettable part in all our Mediterranean success, by land, sea and air.~~ And so to the southern front; a few more prisoners, captive to the Eighth Army.
